SIGNS IN THE RIGHT OF WAY

Signs are an important element in helping a customer locate a business. They promote awareness of a business name, products, hours and special features. But the proliferation of signs along commercial streets has occurred in many areas of Tucson, all competing with each other. Too many temporary signs can cause visual clutter. This in turn can cause confusion to a customer. Also, temporary signs and signs that move can be a dangerous distraction to drivers and can block a driver's view.

The City of Tucson code prohibits any signs to be placed on the public right-of-way. The code also is very restrictive regarding signs on private property.

The public right-of-way is the land that is owned by the City of Tucson. It is illegal to place any sign on this land. Tucson is not unique. Most municipalities restrict any placement of signs on the public right-of-way. The public right-of-way is the land from the curb of a street up to and typically beyond the other side of the sidewalk up to a property line designator such as a wall, fence or utility pole. It is also all the land on the medians and boulevards between the roadways.

KNOW THE CODE

The code that governs this requirement is Chapter 3 of the Tucson Code, sec. 3-55 Signs in Public areas: No sign shall be permitted which is placed on any curb, sidewalk, post, pole, hydrant, bridge, tree, or other surface located on public property or over or across any street or public thoroughfare.

The Tucson Code prohibits the placement of any sign in these areas. The city can remove any sign placed illegally in these areas.

To find out where on a property the right-of-way is located, contact the City of Tucson Engineering Survey Section. If you give them an address, they will provide you with distance from the city street to where private property begins. It could range from 5 to 80 feet or more. To contact them call:
